Dear Friend,

Grand Funk Railroad, Three Dog Night, Chicago, The Doobie Brothers and The Temptations; what a line up of groups that I enjoyed for well over thirty years. I actually thought their music was classic and either enjoyed listening to or singing it. I never truly understood why I was living my life addicted to what I saw in my rear view mirror, while trying to go forward. Habits from the past, like these songs, were keeping me in bondage ... and then I read Chapter 17 of Rockin' Down The Highway to Hell by Michael Bruce Plont.

This chapter, "Stunted Growth" is an eye opener that has the potential to set multitudes free! I highly recommend this book to all who enjoy any type of music, and if you are able to, you need to schedule this author to speak at your next gathering. During our recent conference held January 13-15, 2006, this man impacted the lives of thousands here in my home of Hawaii. Friend, his message touched and transformed us some 4,000 miles away from the contiguous United States, and I know it will do the same for you.
